Worksheet 04	The Present Continuous	Fill in the correct form
Structure pattern:	Mary is writing a letter.
Grammar:	The present continuous describes an action taking place at the moment of speaking, or within the present period of time (e.g. I'm still working at the farm). A number of verbs — especially those of sense perception — do not usually form a continuous form: to see, to hear, to notice, to smell, to recognize, to think (that), to feel (that), to understand, to forget, to know, and others. In these cases, 'can' is often used instead: I can see him. I can hear him.
Examples:	I can see an aeroplane in the sky, it is flying at 3,000 feet. Can you smell anything? Yes, I can smell gas.
Exercise:	Put the verb in brackets into the present continuous wherever possible. Remember: verbs of perception usually do not take the continuous form. (Write your answer in the right-hand column.)
Example:	I can see an aeroplane in the sky, it (to fly) at 3,000 feet.	it is flying
